Planning for new fire and ambulance building gets voter OK

$50,000 allocated for preliminary architectural and engineering work

By MICHAEL DANIELS
Forty-seven Bethel residents, including many emergency responders and their families, turned out for Monday evening's vote on whether to spend $50,000 for preliminary architectural and engineering work for a new fire and ambulance station.

All but one said: "do it." There was little discussion of the matter. Only Ann Greenleaf, the sole negative vote, spoke. She questioned the wisdom of spending a large sum of money on a project which has yet to be approved in totality, or even concept, by town voters.

"I don't understand why we're spending this much money on something that hasn't been voted," Greenleaf said.

"So we can take an informed number (cost) to voters in June," replied Town Manager Scott Cole.

At the annual Town Meeting that month, residents are expected to vote up or down on the entire project, which is currently projected to cost nearly $2 million.

The $50,000 approved Monday will come from the town's undesignated fund balance (which stands at approximately $1 million, Cole said).

According to the breakdown presented to voters Monday, the $50,000 will be spent for design and engineering work, by Smith/Reuter Architects ($30,000); pre-construction development of a final cost, by RLR Enterprises ($10,000); and for other contingencies, such as geotechnical service, additional surveying and possible acquisition of additional land from an abutter (voters had earlier approved spending $42,000 to expand and partially square off the current lot).

The Board of Selectmen is scheduled to meet with RLR Enterprises Monday, Feb. 18, to sign a contract for this portion of the project.

Under the "contractor-at-risk" process the town is utilizing for the project, RLR will also serve as overall contractor, and will be responsible for bringing the project in at or under the estimate it develops for presentation to voters in June.

Antenna upgrade leaves some TV viewers here in the dark

By ALISON ALOISIO
With cabin fever season looming, some local television viewers last week found themselves without even the solace of something to watch on the box.

The blackout follows television station WMTW's changeover to a new broadcast tower.

The new 1,687-foot tower, located in Baldwin, tripled the number of viewers who can receive WMTW (Channel 8). The station formerly broadcast from the top of Mt. Washington, at a height of more than 6,000 feet.

The changeover is a bonus for viewers in the Portland area, but it's a mixed bag for viewers here. Some in the Bethel area now receive a clearer signal, or in some cases, receive it for the first time.

But for others, like Beverly Corriveau of Gilead, it means a blank screen. "We're without television," she said.

She and her family received TV by antennae — an antennae that was able to pick up only WMTW. Now, she said, "We can't even get a voice."

She now relies on videotapes for viewing entertainment. Corriveau says she misses getting local news.

That's the case also for Jerry Loring of Gilead, who relied entirely on Channel 8. It's not worth getting a satellite dish, he said, because there is no local programming.

Now, he watches a very "ghostly" Channel 10. "It's better than nothing," he said.

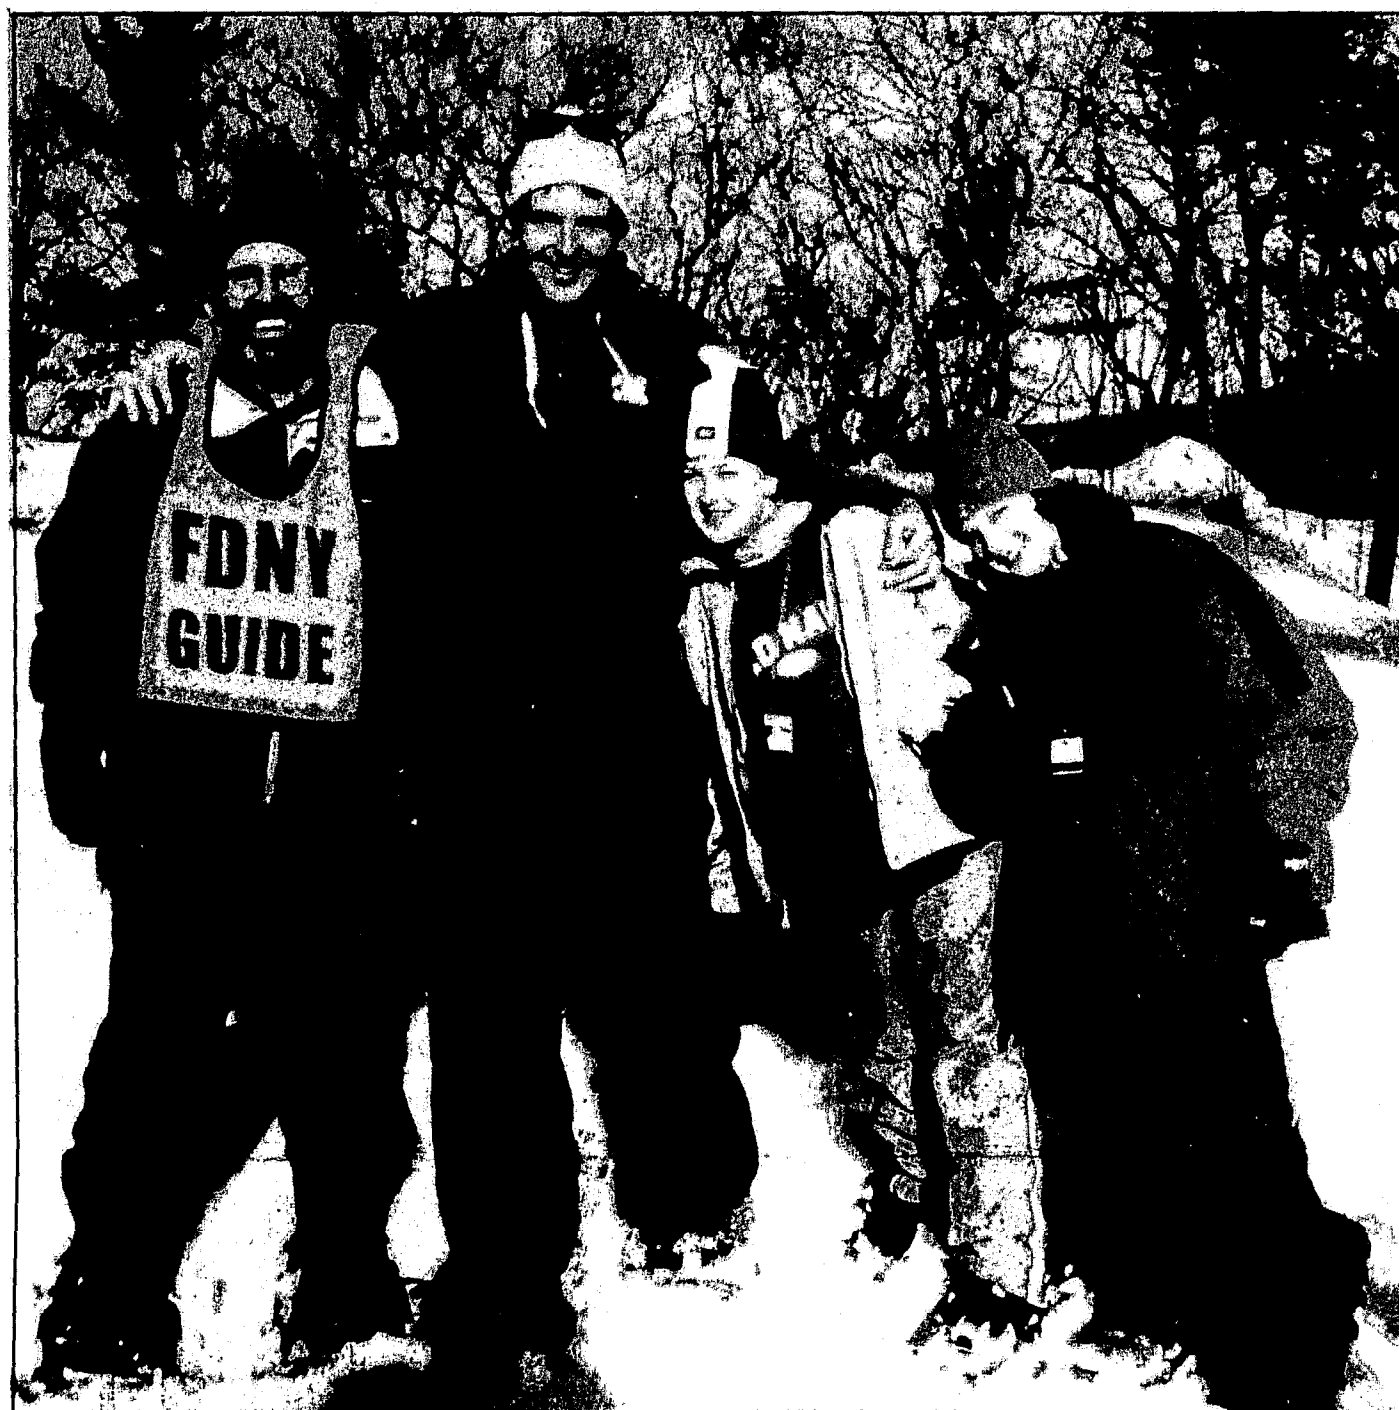

Bev Corriveau got one channel, 8. Now she gets none.

Karlene Bachelder of Newry is in better shape, because she gets satellite TV. But she, too, has lost WMTW, her source of local programming.

David Kaufman, executive vice president of WMTW Broadcast Group, said he feels badly that some people have lost their service. But in the larger picture, he said, the station had to consider better serving its primary market. "We're licensed to the Portland market, and we've been underserving it for 50

A respite from the horror

Among the New York City firefighters visiting in Bethel this week was Harry McCabe and his daughters, Melissa and Marie. On Friday, the family went snowshoeing near the Songo Pond Mine with guide Scott Hynek of Locke Mills. McCabe and his family also skied and played laser tag while here.

Community welcomes NYC responders

By ALISON ALOISIO
Capt. Mike Sorrentino, Engine 214 of the Fire Department of New York, spent last week in Bethel "skiing and skiing and skiing."

He was one of about two dozen firefighters and, in some cases, their families, who spent a getaway week in the area, compliments of the local hospitality industry.

Sorrentino was at the World Trade Center Sept. 11, and lost five members of his 25-member firehouse. He was, he said, one of the ones "who didn't get struck by a lightning bolt. It was luck."

Since that day, people everywhere "have opened their arms to us," Sorrentino said.

In Bethel that meant opening the doors of lodging places, restaurants and recreation centers, either for free or at drastically reduced rates. Sorrentino came to Maine with his friend and fellow firefighter, Lt. Rudy Weindler. The pair spent most of the week skiing at Sunday River Ski Resort.

They stayed at the National

CHRIS LYONS, NY rescue worker

State Senate Emergency Task Force.

Lyons later developed a lung infection, contracted from inhaling particles of concrete, asbestos, glass and other substances during the recovery and cleanup efforts.

But that didn't stop him from skiing. And early in the week, he returned to a rescue mode when he helped a 76-year-old local skier who took a hard fall at Sunday River. The man did not want to ride the ski patrol sled down, so Chris accompanied him down a gentler slope.

Maine Conservation School adds second campus

By REBECCA ZICARELLI
The Maine Conservation School, where campers have learned traditional outdoor skills since the 1940s, is going through a growth spurt. The school has a new president, Sandy Neily, and a new North Woods campus, the Greenland Point Center, on Long Lake in Princeton.

Neily replaced Chaitanya York at the helm of the school last May. Three weeks later, she was asked to add the Greenland Point Center to the school.

Her response was an unqualified, "I'll have to research this."

What she discovered was a nearly perfect match. The Greenland Point Center has been run as a summer camp for children by University of Maine, Machias since 1995. Conservation Camp has been taught there since 1982. University students study outdoor recreation and forestry on the site, and provide much of the labor force for the camp.

Located an hour and a half north-east of Bangor, Greenland Point has a well developed service area, a dedicated core of campers, and ongoing programs that are similar to those offered at the Bryant Pond school. There is a full staff, including veteran director of ten years, Adam Goodspeed.

"The cabins are 80 years old," Neily said, "built as Conservation Corps work at the end of World War I. There is a lot of water frontage, an entire peninsula that juts out into Big Lake, 80 acres of wilderness with shelters, outhouses, and back-country areas. It's an excellent outdoor location, more remote than North Woodstock, but still convenient to Bangor."

The Maine Conservation School, has now taken over administration of the camp using the ongoing programs already offered there.

The right woman for the job

Neily brings a variety of skills and experience to the Maine Conservation School. She's a teacher, with public-school experience. At the Maine Audubon Society, she worked to bring disparate groups.

AN INCLUSIONARY TRADITION

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article regarding the school board policy on sports participation in the Jan. 31 edition of The Citizen. I am sorry that this issue had to be portrayed in such a divisive, negative manner.

The actual relationship between Mahoosuc Mountains School and SAD44 is complementary; each provides services for the other in a collaborative manner. This is even true on a financial level, as the local taxes paid by parents of students who live within the district continue to go to the district; on top of funding local public education through their tax dollars, these parents pay tuition to MMS.

We have opposed the enactment of this new policy, citing the inclusionary tradition of our district, represented in practice if not in policy for many years. After all, the fact is that most of the MMS students will continue on to attend Telstar High, playing sports with many of the same students as they have throughout the elementary years.

With sensitivity for the ongoing funding questions, we worked for a policy that would allow the development of a fair "fee for services" for these students from the outlying towns and territories. It is unfortunate that fear of unknown outsiders taking advantage of this policy, along with erroneous notions of competition for dollars, hindered the board from voting in favor of including these few children in our after-school sports programs.

Mr. Brough's dissenting comment regarding impact was the most accurate in the article; this policy will keep just one student from continuing to participate with his lifelong neighbors and friends in the "cut" teams (varsity level soccer, b-ball, baseball); it will deprive just two or three others from continuing with their peers on any of the open participation teams. In other words, the inclusion of these children has negligibly impacted the teams until now. Their exclusion, slated to begin next fall, will significantly impact these few children. However, we at MMS continue optimistically to work on creative ways to solve this problem, and continue attempting to work with the SAD44 board and staff to provide for our communities' children.

Thanks to all the community members who have supported us in so many ways.

GOING THE EXTRA MILE

To the Editor:

San Diego is just one of several venues across the United States where people will be tying on their walking shoes and heading out for 60 miles over a three-day period to help raise money for breast cancer research, early detection and treatment. The event is called the Avon 3-Day. One objective of the Avon Breast Cancer 3-Day is to raise more money and get it to the research and treatment facilities faster than any other organized fundraiser.

I am one of just three Maine residents registered for the event in San Diego that is scheduled for April 12 to 14. This past Sunday, Feb. 10, many residents gathered for a Supper Buffet at the Bethel Inn Conference Center to raise funds for my walk. A huge thank you goes out to The Bethel Inn, who donated the space, and to Café DiCocoa, Sudbury Inn, L'Auberge Country Inn and Restaurant, Sunday River Brewing Company, Kowloon Restaurant, the Good Food Store, and the Victoria Inn, who donated scrumptious food for the event. Over $2,000 was pledged during the evening. This fulfilled the second objective of the event: to challenge participants to achieve more than they first thought possible, hence the by-line "Impossible Dreams."

Some important statistics:
1,000,000 women in America are living with undetected breast cancer.
One out of every nine women in America will develop breast cancer in her lifetime. That's up from one out of 14 in 1960.

Over 70 percent of breast cancer cases occur in women with no identifiable risk factors.
In 2001, 1,500 men will have been diagnosed with breast cancer and 400 will die.

Over two million breast cancer survivors are alive in America today.
Anyone can be a part of the solution: 1) Encourage a loved one to get her mammogram done and follow up with regular breast self exams, and 2) Make a donation to the Avon Breast Cancer 3-Day by logging on the www.BethPeople.com and pledge to Penny Bohac-Cardello or Dolores Hoeh.

Again, thank you to all who made this fundraiser so very successful.
Penny L. Bohac-Cardello

SNOWBOX DERBY THANKS

To the Editor:

I would like to express thanks from my class and myself to Seabury Lyon and Richard Duplessis for taking the time to be mentors in the Snowbox Derby building. They made this activity a very meaningful and fun experience for the ten students in my class who chose to be part of their team. Their enthusiasm and constant reminders of team effort were super. Each day I would get e-mail updates from the happenings of the night before, along with the latest pictures. Also, a thank you to Tim O'Connor for supplying workspace in his classroom for the group and to all the parents who made sure that their child had their notes and were picked up each day.

Saturday, the day of the derby, was cold and windy but that didn't stop the excitement of the racers. What a fun time was had by all.

I hope that next year others will volunteer to be mentors and help out this fun group activity. I was glad to be a small part of all this team effort.

Fire station

If voters then give the go-ahead, Cole said, the new station could be ready for occupancy by June 2003. Depending where it is sited on the lot, he said, it might be possible to continue using the old building during construction. If the old building has to be razed to make way for the new, Cole said, then temporary quarters for the fire trucks will be sought elsewhere in town.

THE BETHEL FIRE STATION, located on the town common, is by general agreement out of date and undersized. Voters on Monday approved spending $50,000 for preliminary architectural and engineering work on a replacement building, one that would also house the Rescue Service. The final decision on whether to go ahead with the new building will be made by voters at the annual Town Meeting in June.

The greening of state government

You may have heard the terms "sustainability" and "environmental management systems" bandied around lately.

The first essentially means meeting today's needs while ensuring that future generations can meet their needs as well. It steers behavior away from consumption of excess natural resources.

The second term refers to plans that keep organizations on an environmentally friendly track. They involve complying with environmental laws and often inspire performance well beyond minimum expectations.

Note the deliberate use of the word "organization," rather than "companies" or "industry," in that definition. Basically, government can and should follow the same environmental ethic expected of the private sector.

To make this happen, the Maine Legislature passed a law last session that establishes a Clean Government Initiative. The law requires that state agencies comply with all state and federal environmental laws and that they incorporate environmentally sustainable practices into their planning, operations and regulatory functions.

That may sound like a no-brainer. However, the reality in any bureaucracy is that fiscal constraints often require prioritization of scarce dollars. Consequently, environmental issues, and investments to institutionalize sustainable operations, can take a back seat to fixed-cost items and more popular initiatives when budgets are written. Add to that handicap a lack of knowledge regarding environmental laws and their nuances, and the result is noncompliance.

The new law directly addresses this problem. The commissioners of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and the Department of Administrative and Financial Services (DAFS) are the directors of the Clean Government Initiative. This leadership team combines the environmental perspective with the budgetary oversight of all facilities, vehicles and central services. The directors must develop the Initiative's goals and specific mechanisms to measure progress. They must also advise the governor and Legislature on policies developed to achieve the goals.

It's likely that the policies will involve pollution prevention, energy efficiency and procurement of environmental friendly products and services. Actions could include changing processes and procedures to reduce waste, operating vehicles that run cleaner or use renewable energy and buying cleaning products that are toxic free and/or readily recyclable.

The real nuts and bolts of the Initiative are found in its implementation. Each state agency must audit its facilities for environmental compliance. Then they must develop a two-year plan that outlines how and when they will address the findings. The agency plan must also include goals for incorporating environmental sustainable practices in planning and operations. Additionally, each agency must appoint an employee who is accountable for assuring that the plan is implemented.

A synopsis of these biennial reports will be presented to the Legislature in January of 2003. It will identify the successes as well as the obstacles involved in implementing the Initiative. You, too, will be able to follow the progress of the Initiative via a Web site now under development.

In short — what's good for industry is green for government. Maybe the lessons learned from both will keep Maine the special place we call home.

"In our back yard" is a column of the Maine Department of Environmental Protection. E-mail your environmental questions to: infodep@state.me.us or send them to: "In our backyard," Maine DEP, 17 State House Station, Augusta, ME 04333.

Motoring matters mostly

Thursday, Feb. 7

At 10:40 p.m. police stopped a subject on Route 26 for an inadequate headlight. A license check showed a suspended status. Charles W. Frazier, 47, of Lisbon was summonsed for OAS.

Sunday, Feb. 10

At 12:01 a.m. police stopped a subject on Route 2 for erratic operation. The driver showed signs of intoxication. She was given field sobriety tests and a breath test. Marcia E. Contrado, 40, was charged with OUI.

At 1:09 a.m. police stopped a subject on Route 2 for speeding (66 mph in a 50 mph zone). Jonathan Head, 34, of Bethel was charged with speeding, operating an unregistered motor vehicle and failing to display a current valid inspection certificate.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being arrested or issued a criminal summons, but does not include all reports of other police activity. Board reaffirms sports decision

ANDOVER—The SAD44 School Board Monday turned down a proposed compromise to permit non-resident students attending a private middle school in the district to participate in Telstar Middle School athletics. The board had twice earlier voted down such participation, expressing concern that students from the private Mahoosuc Mountains (middle) School could displace district students on teams with a limited number of players. Marie Hickey, director of MMS, recently proposed that the students be allowed to play for a fee of $500. The question then came before the Policy Committee, which could not make a formal recommendation because it did not have a quorum at its meeting. Members, however, asked the issue be placed on Monday's agenda. "I favor some degree of collaboration and cooperation" with the school, said Woodstock director Marcel Polak at the board meeting. "This is a compromise I will support." Hickey also argued for collaboration, saying she has tried to provide for give-and-take between her school and SAD44. But Director Dave Langlois of Newry said the district loses about $4,700 in tuition from the state when a student attends the private school instead of TMS, and that money must be made up by taxpayers. "I feel our obligation is to the SAD44 students," he said. Only Polak and Bethel director Barbara Dumont voted for the proposal.

Senior College group lays plans

BETHEL—Three dozen people attended a meeting last week to consider forming a Senior College in the Bethel area. The focus would be on non-credit, university-style courses, taught by volunteer instructors. Addressing those in attendance was Kai Lightfoot of the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute, a senior college associated with the University of Southern Maine. The following people will serve on a steering committee for the local effort: Jan Todd, Jackie Cressy, Nancy Murphy, Marlene Engdahl, Gwyneth Boyr, James MacGregor, Nan Timberlake, Jane DeFrees, Walter Hatch, Cathy Newell and Priscella Walker. The committee will meet Feb. 27 to consider the use of resources from USM, establish a time line and identify a leadership team. Anyone interested in becoming involved in the project may contact the SAD44 Adult Education office at 824-2780.

Camera fundraiser progressing

BETHEL—The Bethel Fire Department has raised $6,000 in three weeks toward a goal of purchasing a thermal imaging camera, according to firefighter Mike Jodrey. Mundt-Allen American Legion Post 81 has agreed to match the money raised, up to $10,000. The department hopes to raise another $4,000 to $5,000 in the next couple of weeks, Jodrey said. Contributions so far have come primarily from individuals, with an additional pledge from a civic organization. The department hopes businesses that would benefit from department services will also contribute.

Woman injured in Gilead accident

GILEAD—A Massachusetts woman was critically injured Tuesday night when her family's sport utility vehicle rolled over on Route 2. Michelle Stentiford, 23, was riding with her parents, Joseph and Charlene Stentiford of Melrose, Mass., and her fiancé, Sean Hanson, 22, of Rumford, according to deputy Phil Taylor of the Oxford County Sheriff's Department. The 2000 Isuzu was traveling east at about 5:30 p.m. when it hit ice and rolled over several times. Stentiford was taken to Stephens Memorial Hospital by Bethel Rescue, and was then flown by LifeFlight to Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston. She was listed in serious condition on Wednesday. Her parents and fiancé were not injured, Taylor said. All four were wearing seat belts.

McCloy wins Super Series

ASPEN, Colo.—U.S. Ski Team member Hilary McCloy of Bethel won the overall Chevy Truck Super Series title recently by finishing 10th in a Super Series Finals Super-G race in Aspen. The title winner is determined by points earned in races over the course of the season. The Chevy Truck Super Series is the U.S. portion of the FIS Nor Am Cup, one of five International Ski Federation Continental Cup series throughout the world. The top two overall skiers in the NorAm standings in each of four disciplines (slalom, giant slalom, super-G and downhill) earn World Cup starting positions for the following season. McCloy also earned $10,000 for winning the title.

Casino Night Saturday

NEWRY—The Sunday River Ski Club will sponsor its annual Casino Night fundraiser on Saturday from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Grand Summit Hotel. Activities will include casino games, live and silent auctions. Proceeds benefit the club and the Gould/Sunday River competition programs. Those under 18 must be accompanied by a parent.

Lecture on Islam at Gould

BETHEL—On Friday at 6:30 p.m., Gould Academy will host a lecture and slide show on Islamic culture. The presentation, which is open to the public, will be held in the upstairs meeting room of Ordway Hall. Nahid Dalpour of Wilton, whose son, Idin, is a junior at Gould, will speak to students and interested townspeople on the Islamic faith. Her 45-minute talk will be followed by a slideshow on Islamic architecture.

Bennett to run for re-election

NORWAY—Maine Senate President Rick Bennett (R-Norway) has announced he is seeking reelection to a fourth and final term in the Maine Senate. Bennett's district comprises 15 towns in western Maine, spanning Oxford, Androscoggin and Cumberland counties. At 38 the youngest member of the Senate, Bennett served the first year of his current term as president pro tem and as a member of the Legislative Council, the management board of the Legislature. In December he became President of the Senate under a power-sharing agreement. Bennett served in the Maine House of Representatives from 1990 to 1994. In 1994 he narrowly lost the election to Maine's Second Congressional District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. An honors graduate of Harvard College, he is currently completing his MBA at the University of Southern Maine. He and his wife, Karen, live in North Norway with their two children.

Ban called for in p-t lumber

DOVER, N.H.—The state chapter of the Sierra Club is calling on state and local officials to ban pressure-treated lumber, which the group says can leach arsenic into ground water and affect the health of children who use playground equipment built with the wood. Wood treated with chromated copper arsenate is used in playgrounds and decks because of its insect- and rot-resistant qualities. Dr. John Meinhold, chairman of the Sierra Club's Clean Water Committee, recently presented Portsmouth officials with a resolution calling for the phaseout of treated wood. He said he has heard the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is working with the wood industry on a voluntary phase-out of the lumber. "This doesn't go far enough," Meinhold said. "New Hampshire needs a mandatory 90-day phaseout." State club chairman Jon Barrows said some studies suggest arsenic leaching from pressure-treated lumber can significantly raise risks of bladder, lung and other cancers in children who spend a lot of time playing on it.

Love Lines

Romantic things to do with your Valentine

BY REBECCA ZICARELLI

It's the time for lovers. Valentine's Day is here. While tradition calls for a box of chocolates and roses (Valentines still love chocolates and roses), there are lots of other romantic things you can do with your sweetheart to celebrate love.

Go for a sleigh ride. We're talking old-fashioned romance here. Just imagine the music of sleigh bells played to the rhythm of a gentle trot. You're there, snug on a bench with your honey cuddled up next to you. Sound like fun? Contact: Korhonen Farm, (207) 824-2866; Pleasant Views Farm, (207) 583-4432; Sunday River Stables, (207) 824-6743.

Fireworks are always romantic. For real romance, try a Snowshoe trek to see the fireworks on Thursday and Saturday night at Sunday River Ski Area. Snowshoeing is easy; you simply walk (though your stance will be a bit wider.) Dress in layers, because it's also hard work and you'll heat up as you go. Take along some water, and maybe a thermos of hot chocolate. Where do you go? Well, that's up to Dillon Gillies, who you'll find at the Snow Cap Inn. Dillon leads the trips to various locals on the mountain, depending on the strength and abilities of the people who want to go.

He's got snowshoe rentals and headlamps available. So, just imagine - trekking through the woods on a quiet night. Finally you stop, and your Valentine moves up close for warmth as you watch the fireworks light up the sky. . . Contact Dillon Gillies at the Snow Cap Inn, (207) 824-6000.

Visit a romantic spot usually reserved for summertime. The Artist Bridge, a covered bridge crossing Sunday River, is always romantic. There's something irresistible about standing in its shelter with the rushing water below. Follow the Sunday River Road, and the signs pointing to the covered bridge. For a bit more excitement and adventure, visit a waterfall. Waterfalls are usually the cool reward for a summertime hike. But in the winter, waterfalls are magical. They dress up in icy finery, sculpted into phantasmagorical shapes. Screw Auger Falls, in Grafton Notch State Park is the easiest to reach, located in Grafton Notch State Park on Route 26 North, and doesn't require a hike. Others to consider include Mother Walkers Falls, also in Grafton Notch State Park; Step Falls, located just before Grafton Notch State Park; and Frenchman's Hole, on the Sunday River Road (you'll have to walk to this one. Follow the Sunday River Road north until you see a left with two bridges over the river. Follow the river upstream again for another quarter mile.) Caution: icy conditions can make this dangerous. If you want to visit a waterfall in winter, do, but use care and common sense.

Thursday night, you'll find lots of live music at the Sudbury Inn's Hoot Nite, a jam session that brings out the local musical talent. There's live music at the Sud's Pub, Brew Pub, and karaoke at the Back Stage on weekends, if you feel like crooning your special song to your loved one.

Ice Skating on the Bethel Common is always fun. If you're experienced enough to be good skaters, you can swoop and swirl together, and pretend you're in the pair's competition in Salt Lake City. Otherwise, it's great fun just to help hold each other up as you test the strength of your ankles. Don't own skates? Don't worry. You can rent ice skates at the Bethel Inn Pro Shop. (Thanks go to the Bethel Recreation Committee for building and maintaining the skating rink.) After you're done skating, you might want to warm up with a glass of cheer. Try the Gideon Hastings House, which has a perfectly romantic little bar, or the Millbrook Tavern in the Bethel Inn, where you can warm up in front of the fire. Both are right on the Common.

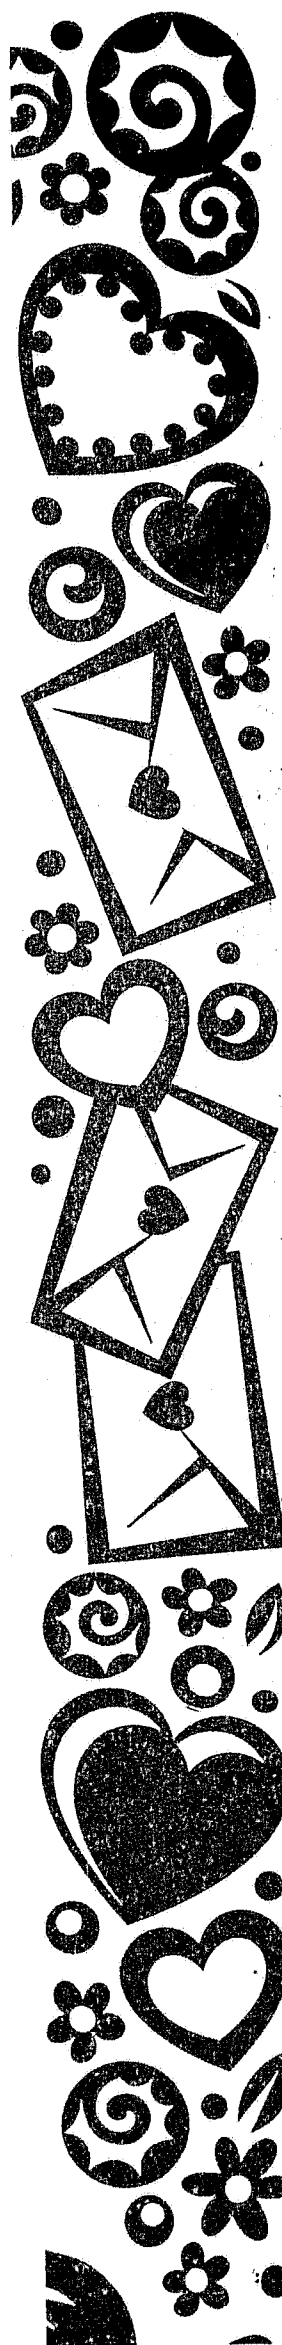

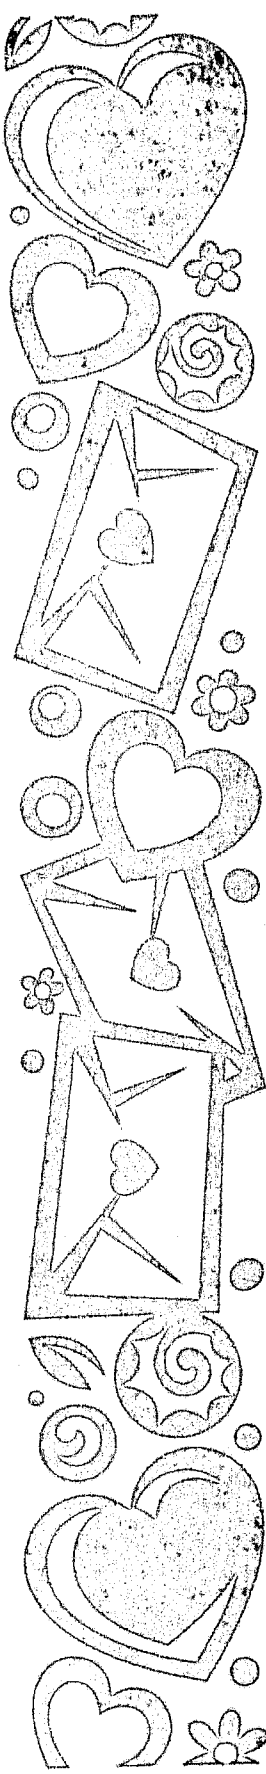

Consider taking in a play. Students at Gould Academy will present Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" On Feb. 15 and 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Bingham Auditorium. The show is free to the public. This comedy about the battle between the sexes will be staged on the most extravagant set built for a Gould performance yet. "The Taming of the Shrew" is being staged as a traditional Shakespearean performance. Don't despair of following the story, though. The cast includes announcers who will give a play-by-play at the end of each scene, making the 17th English a bit more user friendly.

What would Valentines Day be without flowers and chocolate? For flowers on the easy, try Designs in Bethel Village. For flowers with a sense of adventure, make the trip out to Pooh Corner Farm (Route 2 west to the Bog Road, follow the signs.) You'll find Eeyore, Piglet, and Roo here. (Yes, Roo is a real, live kangaroo.) You'll find everything Pooh here, too. If it's chocolate (or maybe a bottle of bubbly) that you're looking for, try the Good Food Store.

Thinking about popping the question? Looking for a special something to remind her of how much you love her? The local jewelers specialize in Maine gemstones. You'll find beautiful tourmaline, amethyst, beryl, aquamarine and more set in gold and silver. Rather you want to ask her (or him, girls, you can take these matters into your own hands) to be yours forever, and you want to remind your valentine of just how special they are, a gift from the mountains of Maine can show where your heart is.

And if your Valentine accepts your romantic proposal, you can have your wedding in Bethel. The wedding business is becoming a booming industry here. The area churches, the gazebo on the Common, and Artist Bridge, and the mountaintops at Sunday River are all popular places for ceremonies. A bride and groom will find everything they need for their dream wedding, from the cake to a horse drawn carriage, from photographers to bag pipers, from florists to caterers. The area inns and hotels frequently host receptions and provide comfortable lodging for out-of-town guests. If you want to help planning a wedding, contact your favorite innkeeper, caterer, or florists to discuss the possibilities.

ranging from wildlife advocates to large timber-holding companies, together on a number of conservation issues. She's run her own whitewater rafting company, worked at Hurricane Island Outward Bound School, and worked as a communications specialist for a number of companies in Maine and Utah.

For Neily, the challenge of running the Conservation School brings together the many strands of a career in conservation, recreation, and education. From the fine art of balancing fun with risk management, from educating campers to recruiting sponsors, from managing budgets to managing employees, Neily has an ideal set of skills for the school.

Traditional outdoor fun

Campers at either of the Conservation School's camps will still have a traditional Maine camping experience.

Conservation Camp, the core program of both campuses, is for campers ages 10 to 12. This program, sponsored by Inland Fisheries and Wildlife (IFW) and the Maine Sportsmen's Alliance, helps campers learn to have fun and to take care of themselves in the outdoors. They learn everything from canoeing and kayaking to backwoods orienteering. Conservation Camp offers traditional sporting education including archery, fly fishing, and rifle instruction, as well as outdoor ethics.

From the Junior Explorer Camp, a weeklong day camp or overnight camp for eight to 10-year-olds, to the Junior Maine Guide Camp, and a Counselor-in-Training program, the Maine Conservation School helps campers learn the skills basic to Maine's outdoor heritage.

"It's supposed to be really great camp fun," Neily said, "but with a focus on learning about the outdoors and how to take care of yourself in it."

Public schools and teachers

Many school groups attend the school in the spring and fall. There are a number of programs available, from single-day team-building programs to a full-week conservation camp.

Neily has been tailoring the school programs to the Maine

SANDY NEILY (right) is the new president of the Maine Conservation School. Neily will not only run the Bryant Pond school, but also be responsible for the school's new campus, the Greenland Point Center on Long Lake in Princeton. The new Down East campus, which had been run by the University of Maine, Machias, already offers programs similar to those of MCS, where campers learn how to enjoy the outdoors while keeping safe in the outdoors. Above: campers fish from the dock at The Greenland Point Center.

Learning Results. Participating schools can meet the state's requirements for learning in areas such as survival skills, emergency first aid, wildlife study, and orienteering.

The Conservation School also offers summer programs for teachers in conjunction with the American Wilderness Leadership School, sponsored by Safari Club International. There are a limited number of scholarships available on a first-come, first-served basis.

come problem solvers but not give them some kind of line?"

Working with Jeff Eckhouse, the new director of education, she plans to add a new layer of learning through experience to the camps.

Experiential learning helps students learn factual information as they perform a task. For example, campers are given wet wood to build a fire. When this doesn't work, they must explore the forest, looking for different types of trees that might be useful for building a 'Within 50 years, the forests of Maine will be in reach of millions and millions of people, and it will be the largest block of green in the East. Our students, from different backgrounds, be it fishing, forestry, or suburb, will be the problem solvers for tomorrow.'

SANDY NEILY
President, Maine Conservation School

Partnerships

Neily rests the past successes and future hopes of the Conservation School on the shoulders of partnerships the school has established with nonprofit groups, state agencies, and private businesses. Besides IFW, the school has long seen the support of sportsmen groups and wildlife conservation groups from all over the state.

Neily said she would like to expand these partnerships to more privately owned businesses.

"I would like to see more businesses sponsoring children with scholarships," she said. "It's a great way of supporting conservation. Can your business send three, five, or six of your employees' children to camp? It's not only a gift to the children; it's a gift to the school."

The future

As Neily looks to the future of the camp, she plans to maintain the traditional programs.

"The question for us," she said, "is how to keep the best parts, and what can we add to make it richer? How can we bring students to the natural world and help them be-fire. As campers learn how to make a fire, they also learn about the various species of trees in the Maine forest, their value to wildlife, and the potential uses of their wood.

Neily said that having campers learn these types of things now, as adolescents, would help equip them to make wise decisions in the future.

For Neily, the vision of her campers as problem solvers is critical because the pressures and demands on the Maine woods are increasing.

"Within 50 years, the forests of Maine will be in reach of millions and millions of people," she said, "and it will be the largest block of green in the East."

"Our students, from different backgrounds, be it fishing, forestry, or suburb, will be the problem solvers for tomorrow."

Lyons stayed at the Victoria Inn, where he found it difficult to leave a tip after a meal. "You try to tip people, and they won't take the money," he said.

Lyons was instrumental in making arrangements for many of the families to come to Maine. Not everyone he encouraged to come, however, was ready. One firefighter's widow, he said, told him she could not come — because her husband's remains had not yet been recovered.

For such family members, and others who are not yet emotionally ready to break away, Bethel businesses are leaving the door open for both later this season and next year.

The local volunteers found their contact with the firefighters gratifying. Arlene Bean, a member of the Mundt-Allen American Legion Post Auxiliary, helped serve a free spaghetti supper to firefighter families Monday night.

"I would like to have spent more time with them," she said. "The children were delightful."

Other activities offered in the area included a dinner last Tuesday evening at Gould Academy, attended by about 50 New Yorkers, snowmobile rides at Bethel Outdoor Adventures, Laser Tag at the BIG Adventure, and skiing and tubing at Mt. Abram.

Also on Tuesday night, the visitors were treated to a fireworks display, compliments of Atlas Fireworks Supply of New Hampshire, and pyrotechnician Jim Bennett.

About two dozen New York firefighters and their families also visited informally with Bethel firefighters at their station.

At that gathering, a vintage piece of Bethel fire equipment was a hit with the younger crowd, according to firefighter Mike Jodrey.

"The kids flocked to the (1973) yellow truck," said Jodrey. "They had never seen a yellow truck."

Jan Brownstein of Bethel, the primary organizer for the firefighters' visit, said he believes the week went over very well. "As far as a place to relax, it was 110 percent successful," he said.

As they headed back to New York, many of the firefighters said they plan to come back to the area.

"We've got the best ambassadors for Bethel, Maine, possible," Brownstein said.

NEW YORKERS IN BETHEL

Bethel will be a port of call for 'cruise ships on rails'

Associated Press

A Texas businessman is offering luxury rail tours in northern Maine this summer, hoping to attract the same sort of well-heeled vacationers who like to sail on cruise ships. At least one of the trips will include a stop in Bethel.

Randy Parten, who owns the nation's largest fleet of private rail cars, is spending about $3.5 million on the venture, which also includes fall foliage tours from Portland to Montreal.

"We want to bring people to Maine, not the coastal part of Maine everybody knows about, but the big interior part of Maine at Moosehead Lake," Parten said. He said he has been working on the project for five years.

Parten's Acadia Railway Company recently mailed 250,000 brochures to prospective customers and plans to air television and radio ads in major Northeast markets later this month.

The trains are essentially cruise ships on rails, Parten said, with five-course meals and a service staff of about 22 people. Although the train has 540 seats, tours would be limited to no more than 240 people, he said.

The "Acadian" would consist of 10 rebuilt stainless-steel, streamline cars from the 1940s and 1950s. The train includes parlor cars, observation cars, dome cars, and dining cars, all finished with wood and brass interiors.

The company uses the same vintage cars during the winter for rail tours in Mexico's Copper Valley region.

Greenville would become the centerpiece of the company's northern tour, the only stop between Montreal and Saint John, New Brunswick.

Passengers on each one-way trip would stay in Greenville for two nights at the Squaw Mountain ski resort and area hotels. There would be two trips a week, from June 9 to Sept. 15.

A three-day tour between Montreal and Portland costs $819 per person double occupancy. A nine-day trip from New York City to Montreal, Greenville, Saint John, Halifax, Bar Harbor, Portland, Boston and back to New York City costs $3,000 per person double occupancy.

Afterward, through Oct. 24, the same trains would run between Montreal and Portland, with a short stop in Bethel.

In northern Maine, the train would use two railroads, the Eastern Maine Railway and the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad. The fall foliage tours would use the St. Lawrence and Atlantic line.

Parten said the Downeaster Amtrak service between Boston and Portland is a crucial component of the company's plan to create a "circle trip" that uses trains, motor coaches and cruise ships to connect New York City with Maine, the maritime provinces and Montreal.

In Greenville, business owners and town officials were excited about the prospect of seeing more than 4,000 wealthy visitors this summer. They said Parten appears quite serious and credible.

"Everybody seems to be just thrilled to death," said Sara Holman, executive director of the Moosehead Lake Region Chamber of Commerce.

years," he said, because the signal from Mt. Washington was not clear in the Portland area.

Now, according to the WMTW Web site, "This new tower facility increases our over-the-air city-grade population coverage by 515,000 people, or 3.5 times, and increases our total coverage of people by almost three times the Mt. Washington site."

Kaufman said the fact that parts of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont have received Channel 8 at all over the years was a bonus created by the unusually high tower on Mt. Washington.

He said viewers who do have a dish and can prove they cannot get the station may receive a waiver from the WMTW to allow them to get ABC by satellite.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

Isn't love grand? Especially new love. There is nothing quite like the glow of a couple who's love is just starting to grow and blossom. I love the way they look into each other's eyes as if nothing else in the world exists.

The way they cherish each other's words as if there is no other sound in the universe. The way they touch and kiss is like a symphony.

New love is wonderful and it's magical, but it can be so gosh darn tense.

New love is wonderful and it's magical, but it can be so gosh darn tense. When you're just falling in love you try so hard to make everything perfect. You always try to look your best even when you feel like crap. You try to act your best and sometimes that's not all that easy. You try to be witty and smart and interesting even when you don't particularly feel like talking. And you'll agree with everything your new love says even when you think they're full of it. That, to me, is a lot of tension.

I'll take old love over new love any day. It may not be grand, but it sure does feel good. Old love is like a good old pair of slippers; a little scruffy, but oh so comfortable.

For example, girls, remember when your love was new and how you would go out to dinner with your honey and starve yourself? You'd eat so daintily and just pick at your meal so your darling wouldn't think you were a pig or anything like that. Then after your sweetie brought you home and gave you that ever so wonderful goodnight kiss and you'd just float into your house and proceed to eat everything in sight and even let food dribble your chin if you wanted to. Remember that?

And guys, remember how hard you worked at trying to sound interesting and intelligent over dinner with your sweetie and how you avoided subjects like sports and cars and hunting? Do you remember how you made it a point not to burp or something worse in front of her for fear that she would think less of you? And once you took her home and gave her that oh so wonderful goodnight kiss and she floated on into her house and you let your body do what ever you wanted it to do and hurried home to watch a Rambo movie? Remember that?

With old love all pretenses are gone. You don't have to pretend to eat like a bird or fight your body's natural urges. You can just be yourself and the amazing thing is that you still love each other. Isn't that absolutely wonderful?

Newlyweds are cute, but there is just so much they don't know about the opposite sex that you only learn after years of loving each other.

Imagine the dismay of a new bride after the honeymoon is over and she discovers that men don't eat candy for breakfast! A bag of M & M's isn't enough to sustain him for the day ahead. He wants a man's breakfast and on top of that he probably expects his new wife to make his lunch to take to work and he won't settle for Twinkies and a bag of chips either.

Imagine the new husband's dismay when he discovers that just because he married a woman doesn't mean she was born knowing how to cook. It's the first time a man realized that cooking isn't a natural talent for all women. Many a meal he'll choke down while proclaiming it's the best food he ever ate. Later, after the new love glow has dimmed he'll let her know that the wonderful meals she makes fall short of what his mother cooks.

With old love none of that matters. The wife has adjusted to eating her M & M's while she makes hubby's breakfast and hubby has adjusted to burgers and grilled cheese sandwiches for supper.

In an old marriage the man never puts the toilet seat down or picks up his socks like he did in the beginning. And the woman doesn't get up before him any more to fix her hair and make-up so he will think she always looks good even first thing in the morning. Messy hair and his long Johns are good enough. And they still love each other in spite of it all because that's what old love is all about.

Though new love is very special there is nothing like the freedom of an old relationship. All the pimples and character flaws have been revealed long ago. You've experienced all the highs and lows that marriage has to offer and you still love each other. Rockets don't go off every time you kiss, but they still go off and your heart doesn't skip a beat every time you look into each other's eyes unless your arteries are clogged, but something deeper takes place after many years of being together. You become soul mates and you have an unspoken understanding that all the pimples and character flaws, dropped socks and wild hair really don't matter.

Today is Valentine's Day and the way I see it, no matter if your love is old or new, it is special and should be celebrated. As for me, I'm going to slip into a pair of old comfortable slippers and enjoy the company of my love of 32 years. So Happy Valentine's Day to everyone and a very special Happy Anniversary honey, I love you pimples and all.

Sheri and Jeremy Head, Heather and Brian Kellogg and Robert Gundersen are on a snowmobile trip in the Greenville area.

Mary Doogen, Sheri Head and two children, Jerome and Crystelle, spent a week visiting Kelly Scott in Cape Coral, Fla.

Amber Bachelder is celebrating her birthday at college, the University of Maine. Anyone wishing to send her a card or correspondence may send it to SF38, Kennebec Hall, Room 330, Orono, ME 04469.

Skip and Lynette Pulkownik and three children, Adam, Andrew and Alena, of Tracy, Calif., visited this past week with Ted and Pat Carter.

Some of The Citizen readers may be interested to know that next Saturday at 7 p.m. on Channel 6 Bill Green's Maine will feature the Old-fashioned Dance at the Greenwood Town Hall that is held every second and fourth Saturday each month.

A group of ladies from the Riverside pool aquacize class rode the Downeaster to Boston on Feb. 4. They included Grace Douglass, Joan Grover, Janie Vogt, Nancy Cummings, Lucia Schwarz and Ruth Feeney. Arriving in Boston at 11:30 a.m., they were able to spend a few hours at the Museum of Fine Arts, dine at Durgin Park and return on the 6:15 train. All agreed it was a great day and would do it again.

Two local women will be putting their physical endurance to a test this year. Penny Bohac and Lorrie Hoeh will be walking in the Avon Breast Cancer 3-Day, a walk of 60 miles, which is organized to raise money for breast cancer research and prevention. Penny will walk in San Diego in April and Lorrie will do her stint in Boston in May. When asked why they are participating in this strenuous event, they both cited the many friends and relatives they have who are or were victims of the disease, and the strong desire to do something positive to help. Both women are seeking sponsors to help them reach their minimum donation amounts. If you would like to be a sponsor, please call Penny at 824-7600 or Lorrie at 836-3011.

The Cross Country Quilters will meet on Tuesday afternoons at 2 p.m. during this month and March at the Bethel Library.

The Mollycoddett Chorus, Chapter of Sweet Adelines International, presented "An American Love Song" at Telstar auditorium last Saturday afternoon. It was a beautiful concert with a tremendous attendance. Many members are from the area: Sue Bartlett, Andrea Bennett, Merry Childs, Nancy Fox, Bonnie Fox, Debby Luxton, Chris Otten, Nellie Swan, Ellie Tracy.

On Friday, Lindley and Pauline Wieden had the pleasure of a visit by their daughter, Priscilla Hansen of Dover-Foxcroft. She helped her dad celebrate his birthday a little early, as she could not attend the gathering on Sunday.

On Saturday, the Wiedens went to Madison to attend a birthday party for their grandson, Lon Miller. They stayed overnight with their daughter, Sylvia, and Blaine Miller in Norridgewock. In the afternoon on Sunday, they celebrated Lindley's birthday. Daughter Cynthia Paine of Keene, N.H., and granddaughter and husband, Amy and Jeffrey Collins of Exeter, N.H., with their two children, Sofie and Sean, were present, as was their daughter, Catherine Sands of Dover-Foxcroft. Grandson Lon and wife Lisa Miller of Madison and their two children, Clayton and Colby, and granddaughter and husband, Christal and Soren Siren of Cornwall were also present. A great time of celebration was shared.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham
BRR — These cold, windy days finally are catching up with us. Spending my days in an overheated school building, I really feel it when I go outside. I'm going to have to start wearing my snow pants more often when I go outside.

Last week, we had the pleasure of going to Gould Academy to hear/see Ann Weiss' exhibit, The Last Picture. It was a series of photographs from the holocaust. That is, it was photos that people had brought with them when they were deported to the concentration camps, photos that were family keepsakes. It is amazing that they survived when their owners did not. It was an exceedingly moving evening.

Other than that, I have been amazed at the traffic in the valley. Cars seem to whip by at most hours of the day. Even at 6 a.m. there is regular traffic. Then again, I am out and about at that hour, also. At least the local traffic is not flying by at outrageous speeds, like the skiway traffic. Guess when you spend your day speeding down the mountain, it seems normal to then get in the car and speed down the road. Maybe that's why I prefer cross-country skiing; one doesn't have to move as fast. I did miss the Newry Recreation Committee ski day, though. I hope there is another one and that I am in better shape to go.

Not much other news this week, except that today (Thursday) is Valentine's Day. It is another one of those holidays geared to chocolate lovers. It does nothing for my attempts to re-wean myself off sugar. Left to my own devices, I would have chocolate every day. Fortunately, or unfortunately, I know what it does to me and try to control it. Sometimes I even succeed. For now, I will just have to struggle through it. If you see me whining on Valentine's Day, do not feed me chocolate.

That is all for this week. Sorry to be so brief, but it is 4 a.m. and 0 degrees out and the living room is fairly chilly at this hour. Have a great week and do eat some chocolate for me.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester
The Hanover Town Office is the recipient of three used computers that were donated to the town. The system is scheduled to be set up by computer technology instructor, Ruth Brown, and her class from Region 9 School of Applied Technology in Mexico. It is expected that one unit will be placed in the community room and will be available for use by citizens.

The system will eventually enable the various town departments a common computer program for the processing of information.

Irv and Barbara Robinson have both returned home from Germany. Barbara had been there several months caring for her ailing mother and Irv joined her for two weeks in January.

The Hanover Planning Board met Wednesday. Three board members attended. They officially changed the board meetings from the first Thursday of each month to the first Wednesday of each month. There was a discussion about the pending Comprehensive Plan, and the board considered a letter requesting information from a resident who plans to move a part of his business to another building.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer
PNCTS will be at the Bethel Town Office on Feb. 28 at 7 p.m., to give a presentation on pipeline safety. This is for everyone who lives on or near the pipeline.

Alder River Grange will have a meeting on Feb. 22 at Stanley Howe's on Broad Street. There will be a 6 p.m. soup and the meeting will be held at 7 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Aube and family of Falmouth visited Neil and Linda Olson on Feb. 2 and 3.

Paul and Charlotte Kimball visited Bruce and Velora Tuominen and family in North Norway on Feb. 10. Jim Kimball was surprised with a birthday party.

Lincoln Fiske celebrated a birthday on Feb. 12.

Pam and Stephen Wojtysiak of Westbrook visited Mary Bean on Feb. 9.

Have a nice week. God Bless America.

North Newry

St. Valentine's Day ... celebrated usually by sending of cards or other gifts. Well, do you know who St. Valentine was? He was a bishop of Rome during the Third Century. He possessed a remarkable gift of eloquence. In other words, he had the gift of being able to persuade people to his way of thinking. And he was successful in converting the Pagan Romans to Christianity. But he incurred the displeasure of the emperor and was put to death Feb. 14, 270 AD. When the saint's name came to be placed in the calendar, his name was given to the day of his death. He had nothing to do with the physical love, or lay with the spiritual love. But we celebrate

No one can comfort a frightened child better than a parent.

But we'd like to help.

In these uncertain times, it is inevitable that children are going to ask their parents about the frightening things that are going on in the world.

At Children's Hospital Boston, our child psychiatry department has developed a pamphlet entitled, "Helping Children Cope with Frightening Events without Frightening Them" that is designed to help parents answer many of the questions that may be troubling their youngsters.

The pamphlet is yours for the asking. Simply fill out the coupon below and send it to us...or call us toll-free at 866-757-5436.

Whether you live across the street, or across state lines, Children's Hospital Boston is your children's hospital.

WINNER - GOVERNOR'S AWARD FOR BUSINESS EXCELLENCE

his day because of the gift of persuasion like "Will you be my valentine," etc. Can I persuade you to be my valentine?

Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday, the 16th president of the United States, born near Hodgenville, Ky. in 1809. His father was a poor farmer, who, in 1816, moved from Kentucky to Indiana. In the crude life of the backwoods, Lincoln's entire schooling did not exceed one year, and he was employed in the agricultural labors. In 1860, he was nominated for the presidency; he received the majority of votes over any other candidates. He became president March 4, 1861. He freed the slaves, he was shot by an assassin and died the next day. He was characterized by a strong sense of duty and great firmness.

Mason Township

by Richard Grover
Things have been pretty quiet in Mason the past few weeks. Big sister, Verna

Thayer, made a rapid and full recovery after having her throat cut. (Actually, she had a benign tumor removed from her thyroid.) She is also happy to be hosting her granddaughter, Tracyn's business office in an upstairs bedroom. Tracyn and husband, Norman Greenberg, have started a business called, "Racing Ahead." This corporation will be planning, hosting and supervising "adventure races" in the northern New England area, beginning with a race in May in western Maine. We are all anxious to see how this venture progresses.

I have been logging in a "big way" with my little 25-horsepower Kubota tractor, which I have outfitted with a "skidding winch." It works slick, as long as I don't try to haul too big a load at once. Last week, I was cutting a few trees along a small brook on my property, parking my tractor on one side of the brook and running a cable across the brook to harvest trees on the other side. This worked pretty well with fir trees, which slid nicely across the ice. Then, I felled a large yellow birch across the brook and sawed it into logs short enough for my tractor to handle. All was well until I hooked onto the butt log. This one broke through the ice and wedged between a large rock and the brook bank. My tractor winch couldn't budge it, even when I looped the winch cable around a tree across the brook to pull from a different angle. I couldn't drive the tractor downstream to get a better angle due to a very high and steep bank. Leaving the log there for a while, I finally decided to try a slightly different approach. I looped the winch cable around a big hemlock down the brook a way and reattached to the choker on my log. This gave me a downstream angle on the log. With this arrangement, the log jogged a couple feet downstream and stopped. However, this was just enough that another cable loop around a tree across the brook yanked the log over the rock, freeing it. This may not be a very productive operation, but it gives me lots of fresh air and exercise.

Gilead

I love winter. I am entranced by the multitude of weather here in the western mountains of Maine. Every day unfolds with a new weather phenomenon — sunshine glittering through flurries, moonlight on the icy-crusted field, damp fog at mountain's base with warm sunshine at the top — a breathtaking thermal inversion that makes ridges of mountains rise up out of white mist like that legendary island, Avalon. I am awed by Friends of Evelyn T. Bean of Bryant Pond, the Orinos of Rumford, who are at their Florida home for the winter months, found this 1912 postcard while at an antique show. They purchased it for $5.50 and sent it to her.

the creativity of that master artist, Mother Nature. The night cold drives me inward to the fireside and sometimes I am blessed with the presence of friends and some bold, dig-deeper conversation. Winter is a great time for pondering the unfathomable mysteries of life. Most recently, I've been giving some thought to the nature of male and female. I would have thought that at my age, I'd have a grip but the more I think about it, the more mysterious it becomes. I'm trying to understand. I want to stop holding out unrealistic expectations for my husband to try on and feeling hugely disappointed when they don't fit. What makes men, men? Or women, women? What brings them together? Why do they seem like opposing weather systems conjuring mystical fog to blur all their individual boundaries?

Take skiing for instance. I am married to a passionate skier. He's thrilled to share his enthusiasm and elated when he successfully passes it on to another human being. He coaches at Sunday River. He's happy and good at what he does. He has been trying to teach me for years. Whenever he tells me something that might help my skiing, my defenses stand at attention ready to parry any comment or let his words fall like rain on a duck's well-oiled feathers. I hate it when he tells me what to do. Yet I slurp up skiing tips from unrelateds like a thirsty puppy. OK. I want to get better. I want to be good but I don't want it to be because of him. I want it to be because of me. And I want him to appreciate my growth for its roots within me — not because he managed to conjure up a better me with some magic words that came from him. (I sound like my adolescent son.) Wisdom and maturity have taught me — let him be off to do his heart's fill of black diamonds. Let him scare himself silly and pretend he wasn't scared. Let him take his spectacular tumbles without my watching. Let me hear his stories of mountain conquest around the safe warmth of the hearth fire. I head for the greens and blues to practice my grace and confidence. It's a pretty common weather phenomenon for storm clouds to gather around husbands who try to teach their wives to ski. This week my gratitude goes out to Women's Turn.

Skiing has long been male-dominated. It was just 15 years ago that manufacturers of ski equipment began to notice that women's bodies were different. Apparently, body awareness takes on to make it from the bedroom to the slopes. Modern man finally began designing ski equipment for women instead of just making men's equipment in smaller sizes. Women like Jeanie Thorin and Janet Spangler began paying attention to a woman's ski experience and the industry did something evolutionary. It listened. Just 10 years ago, Leigh Breidenbach brought a women's ski program to Sunday River from Mt. Abram. Women teaching women has caught on. Now under the wing of Perfect Turn director, Jill Kenney, A Women's Turn is a popular instructional product.

I attended a weekend program two weeks ago. Skiing with one other female intermediate skier, Coach Mary Smith worked some gentle magic of her own. Her quiet persistence chipped away my resistance. I moved through some of my worst fears. At the point of quitting because I was overwhelmed by the numbers of skiers around me, Mary kept pointing me toward the openings. "Look, Elise, here's an open spot," she'd say. Before I knew it, we had made our way to Moonstruck, a road less traveled. It was about the skiing on every downhill surface. On every ride up in the chair, we talked about men. We laughed.

More than skiing was fed by the camaraderie. Women teaching women provides support for women being women. In a culture that has always supported us for supporting men, we have few opportunities to revel in our female-ness together. We compete with men. We compete with each other. I ski with my husband, and will ski beyond my ability to try and keep up. If I fall, I can get mad at him for rushing me. I will feel badly about holding him back if he has to wait for me. Being mentored by a woman is not only teaching me to be a better skier. It provides me with an example of what it feels like to ski with and to have fun doing it.

Now, can we have a program in skiing for couples? Mixed doubles? Couples Thera-ski? Weathering the change? Happy Valentine's Day. Hope you get your heart's desire. With Women's Turn, I may be able to give my husband that Black Diamond.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte
It snowed again last night after a few hours of rain, making Upton a very icy place this morning.

Several people in town have experienced cold and flu symptoms. Evelyn Kenney says it's just a case of the "Februaries."

Hope is ahead. The seed catalogues arrive daily. It will be a few months before Upton shows signs of anything green and growing.

A deer count was held last week. Gene Wixom, Jim Kenney and Richard LeComte put the deer feed out at a prearranged time and then counted the deer at their feeding stations. There were 48 deer seen. Walter Stanczyk still had a few that stayed in the woods behind his house.

The State Line Snowmobile Club held a cookout at Molligok Pond on Saturday, the 9th of February. According to Penny Bernier there were 16 members present. Hot corn chowder and usual cookout fare were enjoyed by all. It was a cold but beautiful day. Members are reminded that the next meeting of the club will be held on Friday, Feb. 15. A potluck supper will be served at 6 p.m. preceding the business meeting. It will be held at the Bull Moose Campground at the New Hampshire state line on Route 26. If anyone wishes to join the club all they have to do is show up.

Congratulations to Cathy Newell on her appointment as executive director of the Maine Adult Education Association. Cathy has been the backbone of the Adult Education Program at SAD44.

We were pleased to learn that Jenny Bernier has received high honors for this term at Fryeburg Academy.

This past weekend Richard and I watched the award-winning miniseries "Native Corn." The director was Tim Gallagher, grandson of Mike Murphy. Talent runs in their family. The Upton School House and the Grange building were some of the features in the film. Most of the movie was filmed between Newry, Grafton and Upton. Enis Hoffman, the producer, and Tim visited us a few weeks ago. They are in the process of making another film in the North Country.

Since it is Valentine's Day, we wish to send anniversary greetings to Penny and Joe Bernier (26 years), Evelyn and Jim Kenney (19 years), and Buster and Ginny Williamson (56 years). Jen and Paul Casey also celebrated an anniversary lately, but they are still on their honeymoon. Happy Valentine's Day to all lovers, legal and illegal. If you haven't bought roses or chocolates, you still have time. (I think there is a hidden message in that.)

We have had regular visits from the cardinal. Liz Stanczyk had a flock of redpolls several times last week. This is definitely a "chickadee year." We have a sizable flock but the Boreal Chickadee that thinks he is a Black Cap is the most interesting. He has a different song than the others and it's hard to overlook him. Their year-round home is the vast northern forests of Canada and Alaska, but sporadically they fly south to New England and even Pennsylvania and Maryland. They are also known as Hudsonian Chickadees. They hang out with nuthatches, black caps and our usual winter birds. Their plumage is distinctive with a dark brown cap, buffy brown flanks and a black bib. They are more brownish than a black cap, but just as cute. Their nesting habits are about the same as other chickadees, raising a brood of about five to seven hatchlings. One pair was observed feeding their young 362 times in a 15-hour period, an average of 24 times an hour. I'd say they were great parents. Look closely at your chickadee flock. You may also have one of these delightful little birds.

We recently heard of the death of Phyllis Parsons of Magalloway. This very pleasant, talented lady will be missed by many. We send our sympathy to her family and many friends.

BLACK DIAMOND SERIES

Sunday River Resort's Black Diamond Family Entertainment Series will bring to the stage The Gizmo Guys on Tuesday, Feb. 19. New Yorkers Allan Jacobs and Barrett Felker, combine technical juggling expertise with fast-paced, offbeat humor. Tickets for the show are $4 for children (6-12) and adults, $6 in advance or $6 and $8 at the door. They may be purchased on-mountain at the South Ridge Welcome Center, the Snow Cap Inn and the Grand Summit Hotel front desk or at Books N Things in Bethel. For further information, call 824-3575.

from us. I do not know who will be living in it, but we welcome them to the neighborhood.

Much sympathy is sent to the family and friends of Evelyn Anderson, who passed away recently.

I've been quite busy doing income tax returns for some of the family. I had a nice visit with my granddaughter, Jessie Hart, while I did her return one day this past week.

Congratulations to Darren Dillingham and Kristy Farmer, who became engaged recently. We wish them many years of happiness.

Please slow down on the snow machines.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that he is filing some information on education in the society museum. The society has many informative programs and activities for you to enjoy. We have had programs on Gettysburg this year by the Bonneys, for example, and Paul Billings spoke on Plimoth Plantation. Certainly, such fare is educational and informative.

Curator Larry Billings donated a paper recording the Patriots victory in the Super Bowl to the Historical Society. He also gave a membership card he once had in a professional organization for the society files. The society tries to keep good records and serve you the best it can. Larry has given some articles on glass and a nice book on antiques. He also has given a book on Milton and another on religion. The society records history while building for the future. The curator gave a photo he took of the Historical Society Museum to a state organization to use for publicity. Sometimes people like to visualize the organization's home. It might encourage them to visit. He has a small exhibit he calls "The North and South" set up on the card table in the society museum he will keep

SETTING UP
Amy Beth Gelineau, assistant director, and Carol Phillips, director, work on the set for "The Taming of the Shrew," which will be performed in Bingham Auditorium at Gould Academy on Feb. 15 and 16, 7:30 p.m. The Gould production of Shakespeare's comedy about the battle between the sexes will also feature announcers giving a play-by-play at the end of each scene, making the 17th English a bit more user friendly.
(Photo by Rebecca Zicarelli)

"The Taming of the Shrew" at Gould

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

"On Feb. 15 and 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Bingham Auditorium, Gould Academy students will perform the "The Taming of the Shrew," a classic Shakespearean comedy about the tension between the sexes. The show is free and the public is welcomed.

Carole Phillips directs the students in a traditional Shakespearean presentation, with one addition. Announcers (Phillips calls them sports-casters,) will give a play-by-play at the end of each scene, making the 17th century English of Shakespeare's time and the character switching of his play more accessible to 21st century audiences.

"The Taming of the Shrew" is the story of two sisters, Katharina and Bianca, and the men they will marry, Petruchio and Lucentio. Bianca wants to wed Lucentio, but her older sister Katharina's difficult personality has made it nearly impossible for her father to find Katharina a husband. In this age of arranged marriages, social protocol demands that Bianca cannot wed until Katharina has. Katharina does have a suitor, Petruchio, and she spares no pain in letting him know that she is not interested in marriage.

The more Katharina treats her suitor, Petruchio, with rudeness, the more he treats her with exaggerated politeness, telling her she is gracious and charming. On their wedding day, however, the tables turn. Petruchio humiliates Katharina. He keeps her waiting at the altar and finally appears dressed like a scarecrow. He assaults the priest, refuses to attend the bridal feast and hurries his wife home on an old horse. There, he refuses to let her eat or sleep, pretending that the food and bed prepared are not good enough for her. The taming has truly begun. In the meantime, the already "tamed" Bianca awaits her nuptials, and the opportunity to show her true colors, raising the question of who the shrew really is. Long before the shrew is tamed, the story involves deception, character switches, and a bet that suggests finding a "good" wife is just another gentlemanly sport.

Katharina's personality, aptly portrayed by Christine Casey, of Grand Isle, Vt., lends the play many of its comic touches. Petruchio, her suitor is played by Mathew Mewton, of Marblehead, Mass. Abigail Johnson, of Scarborough, plays Bianca, and Corey Wood, of Randolph, N.H., plays her suitor, Lucentio.

Director Phillips calls the play a comedy of the battle between the sexes. "It was innovative for its time, because it was the typical role of women to be submissive. But in this play that role is being challenged." By today's standards, "The Taming of the Shrew" is politically incorrect in its portrayal of relationships. But the comedy highlights the changes that have taken place in gender roles over the last 400 years magnificently. It also illuminates the ways those roles have not changed.

In Shakespeare's time, it was considered inappropriate for women to act in theatrical productions, and women's roles were played by men. In a twist of time, many of the men's roles in "The Taming of the Shrew" will be played by women in Gould's production.

The set is large and colorful, the most ambitious set built for a theatrical performance at Gould Academy. The pastel colors, towering columns, and balconies, are reminiscent not only of Shakespeare, but of the illustrations in a Dr. Seuss book, making it a perfect set for a comedy that verges on the edge of cartoon.

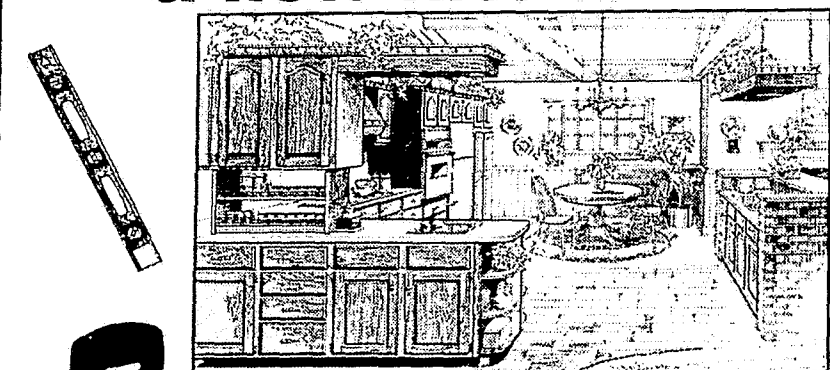

Phillips, a graduate of Northwestern University, has 24 years experience directing school and community theater. In her two years teaching English at Gould, she has proven to be an apt drama coach, helping students bring a depth to their characters that is unusual in a high school production.

Amy Beth Gelineau, a foreign-language teacher, is assistant director. Jim McLaughlin, head of performing arts, and Tom Zicarelli, who teaches music technology, are in charge of the technical aspects of the production.

Each school year, Gould's performing arts students put on three shows. The first, at the end of the fall trimester, was a series of one-act plays, many written and directed by students, in a coffee-house setting. The spring presentation, which will be a musical, has not yet been announced. Recent performances have included "The Little Shop of Horrors," "Bye Bye Birdie," and "Godspell."

32,000,000 Americans wish they weren't here.

It's a state so vast you can travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific and never leave it behind. So enormous that it touches one out of every eleven families in America. So huge that it embraces one out of every six children in America — and holds them in its cruel grip. And with a population of 32 million, it's the second largest state in the nation. It's the state of poverty in America. And though many people live here, it doesn't feel like home.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson
Hi readers. It's that time of year again. I'm talking about the Stoneham Winter Carnival. It's called Mardi Gras 2002 and starts Friday, Feb. 15 with a sledding party and bonfire behind A.J.'s about 6 p.m.

On Saturday, Feb. 16, there will be a Mardi Gras Parade with decorated snowmobile floats at 10 a.m., Stoneham Knight Riders Rally at the field below A.J.'s at 10 a.m., also snowshoe races and blindfolded snowmobile obstacle course. Game night will be held at the community room from 6 to 8 p.m.

On Sunday, Feb. 17, there will be ice skating (location TBA) at 12:30 p.m.

Monday, Feb. 18, the famous dogsled rides (tickets on sale) from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. This was popular last year. Those nice pretty dogs had as much fun as the people, I think. Even I went on a dogsled ride. It was different and fun. Come on down and watch and participate and support the Stoneham Community Events Committee. They do a great job in bringing back the Stoneham Winter Carnival to town.

Also on Monday, Feb. 18, there will be a sledding party from 2 to 4 p.m., a dessert baking contest, dinner and awards at 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. It's all a fun time. Come on and participate.

Phil Morse from Andover has been in town visiting friends a few days this past week.

Don't forget, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Hannah F. Richardson Tent 19, important meeting at the community room on Wednesday, Feb. 20 at 7 p.m.

How did you like that last storm we had? It was a doozy, wasn't it? It snowed and sleeted about all day. A good day to stay in, if you can — which I did. Then, next day, the sun shone and the old groundhog saw his shadow, so guess we're in for a longer winter.

We were saddened to learn of the death of Albert and Geneva Tripp's cousin's husband, David Dingley, recently. Our sympathy and prayers are with this wife, Ruthie, and family and friends.

That was a good Super Bowl game when the Patriots won, wasn't it? I'm not a football fan but everybody was real excited about it. It was a good night.

Albany

by Dana & Sheila Dyke
A warm hello from Albany Township. This weekend's freezing rain coated the roads with ice and made driving rather slippery, prompting the school district to cancel school on Monday.

The hymn sing, which is usually on the last Friday of each month at the Pinkhook Meeting House in Bryant Pond, has been rescheduled to this Friday, the 15th, starting at 7 p.m. So, there won't be any Youth Group meetings on Friday, as the kids will be at the hymn sing.

This Sunday, after church services at the Albany Congregational Church, will be fellowship, wherein the congregation meets in the vestry for refreshments and, well, fellowship.

Members of the Youth Group will be going to the Erin O'Donnell/Shawn Groves concert in South Portland on Friday, the 22nd. This is at the Nazarene Church. We expect everyone will have a great time.

On the evening of Feb. 4 the ladies of Unit 81 Ladies Auxiliary prepared a spaghetti dinner, complete with salads and garlic bread for 18 people from the New York City area. This was part of an effort by Bethel area people and businesses to provide some of the heroes of the Sept. 11 disaster a chance to get away from the ground zero trauma for a while and enjoy some of the winter recreational opportunities in our area.

had been asked to prepare for an influx of 75 people, but this number was reduced by the time of the dinner. A total of five firefighters from four different ladder companies showed up with their families. Most of them met the other firemen and families for the first time at our dinner. Thus there was a lot of conversation among them about their differing experiences. In conversations with some of the family members, we were asked on several occasions why we were doing this for them. Our answers were to the effect that we shared their sorrow and loss and wanted to give them a chance to unwind for a while. They were unanimous in expressing their gratitude to us and the nice Bethel area folks for welcoming them so graciously.

The 28th annual Bethel Historical Society Heritage Day will be held at its Broad Street Regional History Center on Saturday, Feb. 23, 1 to 4 p.m. Special tours of the Dr. Moses Mason House Museum will be offered with hot Indian pudding served from the hearth of the winter kitchen. All area historical societies have been invited to participate in a local history book fair, so tables of publications will be on view for those interested. A continuous series of historical videos will be shown during the afternoon. The exhibits on 150 years of railroad-ing, the Robinson House, Bethel, and natural history of Maine can be visited during the open hours. Traditional craft demonstrations and exhibits will also be featured. Everyone is welcome. Further information can be gained by calling the society at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910.

Another issue of the society's quarterly, The Courier, will be published soon. Anyone wishing a complimentary issue should call the society at the above number or write to P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217 or e-mail info@bethelhistorical.org

Over twelve hundred members strong, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. During the past thirty-five years, the society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. Since 1974, the Society has operated from its Broad Street headquarters, the Dr. Moses Mason House, a period house museum and research library. In 1999, it opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space and administrative offices. Through the years, the society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

From the
Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

Among the items of business when this unit met on Feb. 7 was the endorsement of Jeri Greenwell of Bethel for national president of the American Legion Auxiliary. This is a process that may take a few years, and this unit was proud to endorse Jeri, who has been the Department of Maine president and national vice president of the Eastern Division.

The unit extends its sympathy to member Leona West on the recent loss of her brother, and they wish Joan Roberts a quick recovery from her recent surgery.

The post announces that they will have the annual Oyster Stew Supper at 6 p.m. on Feb. 21, weather permitting. This is for the members and guests, and there will be no charge, but donations would be accepted from any who wish to do so. There will be chicken pie for those who do not eat oysters. They do ask that those planning to attend please notify us by calling Leah Deegan at 824-2477 or 875-2375, or Olive Risko at 665-2909 by Friday, Feb. 15, so they will know how many oysters will be needed.

This is National Salute to Veterans Week, and this unit salutes all those who are veterans as well as those who will become veterans. You are our valentines and we love and salute you every week that we are able to enjoy our way of life and the freedoms we have because of the sacrifices you have made.

The Oxford County Council of the American Legion and Auxiliary will be holding their scheduled meeting at Jackson-Silver Post on March 19. It will be preceded at 6 p.m. by the second annual banquet to honor the past commanders and past presidents of the county organization. There will be a charge of $8 per person. Invitations will be going out shortly.

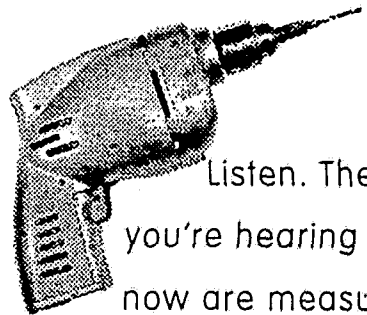

Jackson-Silver Post and Unit will have a regular meeting on Thursday, March 7, following the usual 6 p.m. potluck supper. On March 21, they will be celebrating the beginning of the American Legion with the usual Birthday Supper.

The unit voted to order a couple of samples of the Blue Star Memorial banners that are now available, to see if there is an interest in the

The setting for the photo was the Sanborn house on Eypper Road in Middle Intervale. Coffin had ties with the Sanborn and Farrington families. HOW TO DESTROY YOUR EARS SLOWLY.

Listen. The sounds you're hearing right now are measured in decibels. Repeated exposure to more than 85 decibels – a lawn mower, power tools, even playing a musical instrument – can cause gradual or sudden hearing loss. In fact, about one in ten people in this country is already experiencing some degree of hearing loss. This condition affects job performance and quality of life. If impacts co-workers and family members as well. If you have to raise your voice to be heard, or you can't hear someone two feet away from you, then the noise levels around you are hazardous. And your hearing is at risk. A certified audiologist can measure sound levels, evaluate your hearing, and recommend potential treatment such as professionally-fitted hearing protection. To find out more, contact the American Speech – Language – Hearing Association at 1-800-638-TALK or visit www.asha.org.

Meet José Leiva, staff photographer for the Sun Journal. José is the kind of photographer who catches the mischief in a child's eye or gets the one photo that tells the story of a baseball game or a fire scene. For the past 11 years, he has put his ability with a camera together with his eye for a good shot and our readers get to see the results. He's received awards in Maine and New England for some of those photos. So watch for José's work throughout the paper – it can be found everywhere, just like José.

From the

Bethel Rotary Club

This week in Rotary, Robin Mills presented an update on the Junior Achievement program in the Bethel area. Junior Achievement (JA) is a worldwide nonprofit economic education organization founded in 1919 by Horace A. Moses who also was the founder of 4-H of America. Businesses, foundations, and individuals finance JA. Its purpose is to educate and inspire young people to value free enterprise, business, and economics while improving the quality of their lives. The Bethel area Junior Achievement Advisory Council is one of 21 throughout the State of Maine. Last year, in its first year, JA programs were introduced to grades one, three, and five throughout the SAD44 area. Volunteers reached out to 319 students and into 17 classes. Area businesses made financial contributions to cover the materials necessary as well as encouraged staff members to volunteer to conduct the classes. The goals for this year, 2001-2002, include the teachers' request for expansion of JA to include grades one through seven for a total of 32 classes. Since the program is offered at no cost to the schools, JA needs to raise $2,000 in order to reach their goal of $6,400. The Rotary Club of Bethel is a proud contributor to this great program. JA volunteers in the classroom are still needed, too. Thanks for past and present volunteering from members Al Barth and Pat Roma. Upcoming fundraisers for JA include JA of Maine sponsoring a bowling tournament on March 2 in Westbrook. The JA of Bethel will be looking to participate with a team again this year. Another fundraiser in the planning is a Mount Abram Ski Day on March 23. For more information about JA programs or to inquire about being a volunteer, please contact Robin Mills at 824-3768 or Eileen Meisner at 824-4381.

Attention all quilters of Bethel. The Bethel Guild is calling all quilters in the Bethel area to help with the Wrap-A-Smile project for Rotary's Rotoplast program. Interested quilters may contact member Kathy Thrall at 824-3111 for more information. Donations of quilt material would be appreciated, too.

February is World Understanding Month. The club is honored to help support Ambassadorial Scholar Alex Gillies. The Ambassadorial scholarship program focuses on intercultural exchange which helps promote better world understanding. Alex is completing her study of international relations in Ghana, Africa.

Calendar Items: Feb 14, Golf Tournament Meeting; Feb 18, Oxford Hills Club Annual Dinner; March 24, Country Breakfast; June 22, Rotary Auction; June 24, Rotary Golf Tournament.

Inside Rotary: How 'bout those Pats? Great work with the Snow Box Derby. How was jury duty Dawna?

The Rotarians' 4-Way Test: From the earliest days of the organization, Rotarians were concerned with promoting high ethical standards in their professional lives. One of the world's most widely printed and quoted statements of business ethics is the 4-Way Test, which was created in 1932 by Rotarian Herbert J. Taylor when asked to take charge of a company facing bankruptcy. Adopted in 1943, the 4-Way Test has been translated into more than a hundred languages and published in thousands of ways. It asks the following four questions: 1) Is it the truth? 2) Is it fair to all concerned? 3) Will it build goodwill and better partnerships? And 4) Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

The Rotary Club of Bethel meets Tuesdays at 7:30 a.m. at the Bethel Inn and Country Club.

SAD44 Adult Ed

The Telstar GED site, operated by SAD44 Adult Education, is back in operation, having finally received the 2002 version of the GED, or high school equivalency, tests and the accompanying practice test materials on Feb. 7. A number of students who have been waiting since the previous version expired on Dec. 31 have now begun the testing process. Anyone interested in working on their GED should contact the Adult Education office at 824-2780.

The SAD44 Adult Education program has been serving many of the workers who were laid off by Gilbert Manufacturing and Penley's. These workers are eligible for training benefits and several have completed their GED or brush-up work and have begun programs at area technical colleges. Others are currently in the process. This is a very rewarding group to work with, and they have made use of the guidance services at the Adult Learning Center, with sev-

IRS E-FILE. SO EASY, NO WONDER FORTY MILLION PEOPLE LOVE IT.

This could be the start of a beautiful relationship with your computer. With tax preparation software and IRS e-file, you can prepare your income tax return electronically, sign it electronically by selecting your own Personal Identification Number (PIN), and send it electronically. You get your refund in half the time. With Direct Deposit to your account, in as few as ten days.

IRS e-file is accurate, secure and faster than paper. Everything you need is just a few clicks away. You get electronic acknowledgement within 48 hours that the IRS has accepted your return. So, instead of printing out your return, stuffing envelopes, and running out to the mailbox in the middle of the night, all you have to do is hit the "send" button.

Owe taxes this year? Remember, with IRS e-file, you can send your income tax return now, and schedule your payment for a future date at no charge with an electronic funds withdrawal from your bank account. The funds will be withdrawn on the specific payment date you select, through April 15th. Or, you can charge your taxes to a credit card and enjoy the benefits your card offers, like earning miles, points and rewards.

So, kiss all that extra paperwork goodbye this tax season with IRS e-file. For details, visit us at www.irs.gov eral working on algebra brush-up, as well as computer use and writing skills. The adult education program works closely with the career centers in Rumford and Norway in tailoring a preparation program that will move an individual toward their goal of training and employment.

Ron Smith has been working at the Adult Learning Center computer lab this winter, keeping the facility open extended hours for the benefit of visitors to the area and many of the seasonal and international workers at Sunday River. The international students add a spark to life at the Philbrook Street facility as they keep in touch with home, make travel arrangements, and enjoy using computers in company with the local residents who frequent the center.

The Adult Learning Center will be closed for academic skills and guidance during the school vacation week (Feb. 18). However, the computer lab will be open as usual on Sunday, Monday, Thursday and Friday from 5 to 8 p.m. The Telstar office will be open for ITV classes only. Messages may be left on the answering machine, as staff will be checking in daily.

From the North Country Audubon

The North Country Chapter of the Audubon Society of New Hampshire will host a field trip on Saturday, Feb. 16. Meet at McDonald's in Gorham at 8 a.m. and join us for a trip along the Androscoggin River in search of winter birds. Free and open to the public. The monthly meeting and program will be held on Friday, Feb. 22 at 7 p.m. at the New Hampshire Technical College in Berlin. The program for the evening is titled, "Birds and Nature Set to Music." The public is invited to this free program. For more information on the meeting or field trip, call (603) 752-1924 or (603) 449-1376.

From the S.C.O.R.E.

The Oxford Hills SCORE Chapter has scheduled workshops in Business Planning for Business Start-ups, which will be offered during March at Oxford Hills Comprehensive High School, 256 Main Street, South Paris, under the auspices of the Oxford Hills Adult and Community Education program. Workshops will be held on four successive Wednesday evenings, in room B117, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in accordance with the following schedule: Preparing a Business Plan, Wednesday, March 6; Marketing, Wednesday, March 13; Cash Flow Projection, Wednesday, March 20; Financing a Small Business, Wednesday, March 27.

The workshops will be presented by members of SCORE and the Small Business Development Center/AVCOG. Workshop content has been structured to provide valuable information and assistance in writing a business plan, basic market research, projecting cash flow and obtaining financing for a new business. Writing a good business plan and understanding marketing and the details of cash flow are vital to the success of any business.

The fee for the four-session workshop is $40 and includes participation by one business partner or spouse. Advance registrations with the Office of Adult and Community Education, 743-8842, is required. For additional information call SCORE at 743-0499.

From N.H.C.T.C.

North Country residents can now get a bachelor of science degree in seven different programs without leaving home. The New Hampshire Community Technical College-Berlin has recently joined the Community College Alliance with Franklin University of Columbus, Ohio. Any current or former student of NHCTC-Berlin who has earned an associate degree or equivalent coursework is eligible to enroll in one of Franklin University's online degree programs. Technology has revolutionized the way we communicate, and it is now possible to earn a bachelor of science degree by taking some additional courses at NHCTC-Berlin and then using your home computer to take the online courses offered by Franklin University.

Franklin University has invested $4 million into the development of the Community College Alliance program and the delivery of meaningful online learning experiences. This commitment has put them in the forefront of online education. There are currently 133 community colleges in the alliance and over 800 students are currently taking courses. Unlike some online programs that leave people in a vacuum, students pursuing a degree through the alliance will be considered part of the student body at NHCTC-Berlin and Franklin University and will have full access to the resources of both colleges.

The courses are taught using a variety of Internet resources including bulletin boards, chat rooms and e-mail. Courses are offered in six-, 12- and 15-week formats, allowing students to choose a start date that best coincides with their schedule. A student can choose to take one course at a time or create a full academic course load. The bachelor of science programs available are: Business Administration, Computer Science, Digital Communication, Health Care Management, Management Information Systems, Public Safety Management, Technical Management.

Although each student's situation is unique, the majority of students with an associate degree will take an additional 24 credit hours of courses at NHCTC-Berlin and then will take 40 hours of online courses with Franklin University. The courses taken at NHCTC-Berlin will be at the college's regular tuition rates.

Interested students who wish to find out more about the possibility of earning a four-year degree through the Community College Alliance partners — NHCTC-Berlin and Franklin University — can call Emily Elliot, the college's transfer counselor, at (603) 752-1113 ext. 1050 or visit Franklin University online at www.alliance.franklin.edu.

Building a Home-Improvement Library

Q. I'm wondering if there's a home-repair book out there that covers every area of your property. Do you know of one? — Jane S., Huntsville, Ala.

A. In my experience, there isn't one single book that could possibly tell you how to fix every part of your home. However, I can recommend some comprehensive manuals to add to your home-improvement library:

- "The True Value Guide to Home Repair and Improvement," by Jack Maguire (Stonesong Press, $19.95) — covers nearly all the bases in home repair. It's the first book I'd recommend to new do-it-yourselfers, because it tells you, in simple, straightforward terms, how to handle the myriad home emergencies that crop up when you least expect them. Best of all, it's small enough to carry around with you on repair jobs. The only improvement I'd recommend for this book is the addition of a spiral binder, so you don't have to prop the pages open while working.
- "The Home Owner's Journal: What I Did & When I Did It," by Colleen Jenkins (Blue Sky Marketing, $11.95) — The publisher touts

this as "the most popular home record-keeping book in the world," and while I can't back that up, I can say that this is certainly one of the handiest books on my DIY shelf. With it you can easily document improvements and repairs made to every room in the house. Again, it's easy to carry around in your toolbox, and it's spiral-bound.

- "Home Maintenance for Dummies," by James and Morris Carey (IDG Books Worldwide, $19.99) — Say what you will about the "Dummies" line of instruction manuals, this book is a great resource because its authors know what they're talking about. The Carey brothers are well-known for their talk shows and syndicated column, and their contribution here is great. Purchase this book for greater detail on the repairs listed in the "True Value Guide," and you'll gain a better perspective on repairing and maintaining your home.

- "Haley's Hints: A Compilation," by Graham & Rosemary Haley (3H Productions, $24.95) — This husband and wife team has been collecting money- and time-saving tips for well over a decade; the result is this well-organized book that cuts corners and costs from the kitchen to the garden and beyond. I've owned my well-thumbed copy for a long time now, and I won't loan it to anyone.

- Finally, if your home includes a septic system, don't pass up "The Septic System Owner's Manual," by Lloyd Kahn, Blair Allen and Julie Jones (Shelter Publications, $14.95)

All these books are available at (or can be ordered from) your local bookstore.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Alan P. Turcotte

The wedding of Jennifer J. Hutchins and Alan P. Turcotte was held at 4 p.m. on Dec. 1, 2001 at the First Congregational Church in South Paris. The Rev. Don Mayberry officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Turcotte is the daughter of Michael and Janis Kennagh Hutchins of Hebron Road, South Paris and James and Cindy Bolduc of Gammon Avenue, Auburn. Mr. Turcotte is the son of Ben and Sally Turcotte of Lisbon Road, Lewiston.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess-style satin gown with an embroidered pearl-beaded bodice. Her skirt with matching embroidery around the hem had a chapel length train accented with mini bows and satin-covered buttons down the center back. A silver and pearl tiara supported her veil and she wore long satin gloves. She carried a bouquet of red and white long-stemmed roses accented with peppermint astro and mini carnations.

Jen Corbett, friend of the bride, attended as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Krista Turcotte, daughter of the groom, Miss Sarah Bolduc, sister of the bride, Miss Katie Weaver, friend of the bride, Mrs. Andrea Sickinger and Miss Karen Hutchins, cousins of the bride. The flower girl was Kailey Kennagh, cousin of the bride.

Serving as best man for his father was Kaileb Turcotte, and the ushers were Tom Bolduc and Tommy Hutchins, brothers of the bride, Dave Brochu and Paul LePage, friends of the groom.

Andrea Sickinger sang a solo during the ceremony and Jill Hutchins, aunt of the bride, did a reading.

A reception followed at the Country Way Restaurant in South Paris. The couple drove down the East Coast to Orlando, Fla., where they vacationed for a week before returning home. They reside at 138 Hebron Road, Oxford.

The bride is a 1996 graduate of Oxford Hills High School and a 1998 graduate of Central Maine Technical College with an associate's degree in accounting. She is employed at the Odd Fellow Nursing Home in Auburn as a bookkeeper.

The groom is a graduate of Lewiston High School and is employed as a sales estimator at Damon Insulation in Lewiston.

Mr. & Mrs. George Estrada

Marilyn A. Wheeler and George A. Estrada were married Dec. 9, 2001, at the bride's home in East Bethel. Pastor Rodney Hanscom officiated. Attendants were the bride's friend, Nancy Nichols of Pennacook, N.H., and Roger Wheeler, son of the bride, who served as best man. The wedding was attended by close family members.

Mr. and Mrs. Estrada are making their home in Fruitland Park, Fla., but expect to spend summers in Maine.

No one can comfort a frightened child better than a parent.

But we'd like to help.

In these uncertain times, it is inevitable that children are going to ask their parents about the frightening things that are going on in the world.

At Children's Hospital Boston, our child psychiatry department has developed a pamphlet entitled, "Helping Children Cope with Frightening Events without Frightening Them" that is designed to help parents answer many of the questions that may be troubling their youngsters.

The pamphlet is yours for the asking. Simply fill out the coupon below and send it to us...or call us toll-free at 866-757-5436.

Whether you live across the street, or across state lines, Children's Hospital Boston is your children's hospital.
